MILK PRODUCERS

CONTRIBUTE FUND

Members Subscribe $125 at Their Meeting Saturday.—Employ a Full-Time Secretary.

Members of the local Milk Producers' association assembled Saturday evening at the city hall to arrange for raising an expended amount in bringing the Lake River Creamery company to this city to conduct a cheese factory. After some discussion it was decided to raise the funds necessary, amounting to three hundred dollars, by popular subscription. Papers were accordingly circulated among the members present and in less than twenty minutes $125 had been raised. Every man in the hall donated to the cause in amounts varying from one to five dollars.

The donations were made, for the most part, in notes falling due the fifteenth of next month. Similar papers have been left at the Emil Nischer Implement company in this city, where those members of the association unable to be present at the Saturday meeting, but who wish to contribute to the cause, may call and subscribe whatever sum they wish. The association also decided to engage the services of George Woodruff as secretary of the association for one month. Mr. Woodruff will devote his entire time to advancing the interests of the milk producers and will spend much time in the rural districts.

"There is a feeling among some of the farmers, and a number of the large producers in this locality, that the cheese factory is of a temporary nature and not likely to last," said Mr. Woodruff this morning. "The milk association wishes all to understand that this factory is permanent, and that it can and will take all the milk that the farmers in this vicinity will give it. At present they are increasing only ten thousand pounds of milk per day. Mr. Bays, the head of the concern, has requested that we bond every effort towards securing 35,000 pounds daily as soon as possible, and as much more as the farmers will send in."

"The cheese manufactured by this concern, Great Cheese, has a wide market in this country and is not manufactured by more than two or three concerns in the whole country, that will take all their output for an indefinite period."

"Surely conditions like these are sufficiently stable to warrant farmers increasing their herds and devoting more time to the dairy end of the farm. The cheese company has agreed to pay the prices fixed by the milk association, and that association has fixed the prices only after a careful study that takes up every item of the expense involved in producing milk. I expect to travel through this part of the country for the next few weeks, during which time I will see farmers, explain the business of the cheese factory and do everything possible to further the interests of the producers' association."

METHODIST MEN'S CLUB POSTPONES ITS MEETING

Owing to the fact that Ted Schroeder has been unavoidably detained in Milwaukee the regular meeting of the men's club at the Cargill Memorial Methodist church, which was to have been held tomorrow evening, has been postponed until Friday evening, when they will hold a dinner and afterwards will attend the lecture at the church by Bishop Mitchell of St. Paul.

Bishop Mitchell, who is the bishop of the Methodist church throughout all this region, will be in Janesville to attend a district meeting of the church at the Janesville district of this week, which is famous throughout the entire country, will be delivered on Friday evening, and the men's club will attend this as a part of their program. The bishop will dine with the club on that evening.

DOBIE, UNBEATEN COACH RELEASED BY WASHINGTON

Gilmour Dobie, coach of the University of Washington football team, undated in eight years, will not return to coach the team next season, according to an announcement by President Henry Suzzallo. President Suzzallo said the chief function of the coach is to train character, and that Dobie had failed to perform his full share of the work. Dobie, it was said, made it known recently that he had no intention of ever again acting as coach for any team.

ENTERTAINS FRIENDS ON 81ST BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Lucy J. Miller of Palm Street is Hostess at Birthday Party on Saturday.

Mrs. Lucy J. Miller, 333 Palm street, celebrated her eighty-first birthday on Saturday, Dec. 9, by entertaining twenty-five of her friends and neighbors. Supper was served at six o'clock and an enjoyable social evening was held. Mrs. Miller was born in New Hampshire. She was married at the age of eighteen and has resided in Janesville for more than sixty years.

BIG EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN POSTPONED

Dr. Lincoln McConnell Will Not Conduct Proposed Tabernacle Meetings in Janesville.

Because the pastors of the five local churches, who had the arrangement of the proposed Tabernacle meetings in charge could not reach an agreement with Dr. Lincoln McConnell the evangelist, the meetings have been indefinitely postponed. The preliminary arrangements were handled through a subordinate of Dr. McConnell's, and when some of the later details were considered it was found that the evangelist and a number of local pastors could not agree on the question of Sunday services.

Dr. McConnell insisted that the success of the meetings depended upon the basis of having large Sunday congregations, and that in order to obtain these at least half of the Sunday services in the churches would have to be called off. The pastors, however, did not feel that they could conscientiously do away with so important a part of their own church life as the regular Sunday service, and that the church organization would suffer too greatly if this were done. Dr. McConnell on the other hand, maintained that there were a large number of people who would only go to church once a week, and that he would have to have these people at a Sunday meeting.

The disagreement was one over principle and as a consequence it was decided that the meetings could not be successfully conducted on the basis proposed by the local churches.

There has been a report current that the meetings fell through because Janesville could not afford to pay for them. The chairman of the committee representing the various churches emphatically denied that there was any truth in this rumor, and stated that from the beginning the arrangements with Dr. McConnell as to salary had been entirely satisfactory.

It is likely that an evangelistic campaign will be arranged for next October, and the churches already have a man in mind to take charge of the meetings. By having the meetings at this time, work on the tabernacle, which will be built largely by volunteer workers, can be done during warm weather. More definite announcement as to the date of the postponed meetings will be made by the churches after a meeting of their representatives, but it is expected they will be held during next October or November.

Adage Traced to Bible. "A little bird told me," is an almost universal adage based on the idea that this ubiquitous wanderer from the vantage of the upper air spies out all strange and secret things and tells them to those who can understand. Thus in Ecclesiastes 10:20: "Curse not the king; no, not in any thought; and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber; for the bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which bath wings shall tell the matter."

BAPTIST MINISTER SHOWS CONTAGIOUS NATURE OF RELIGION

Dr. Raymond G. Pierson Points Out Essentials of Personal Religion In Sunday Morning Sermon.

Declaring that much of the force of the Christian religion lies in its contagious nature, Dr. Raymond G. Pierson of the First Baptist church pointed out in his sermon yesterday morning what characteristics must be developed in its followers to spread its doctrines and win even more converts. He pointed out first the contagious, aggressive nature of the first disciples of Jesus Christ under His inspiration. Under Him they had the vision of a world wide conquest of Christianity, and this vision was the basis of their travels through the old world and into the new and is now being carried back to the older barbarous portions. Men have always accepted it because of the message given them by others.

Dr. Pierson showed the task ahead of every member of the church; not perhaps in carrying Christianity into distant regions, but in the influence throughout the entire community. People right here in Janesville are Christians because they have caught it from their testimony and from the evidences of its values demonstrated in its followers.

Dr. Pierson warned people against a too great idealization of their religion. He said that a tendency to seal it up within them, of making a secret of it; and of so shutting out our lives and the good they are capable of doing to the world, is a contagious disease. He urged that our influence should be so great that mere association would force our religion upon others, as a contagious disease is carried out among all the people of a community.

In order to successfully accomplish that end our religion must mean so much to each of us that we will realize what its value in others would be, and would make it more worth while. "Preach the Gospel every place and every place by your life," was the chief testimony of its value in your life.

"Religion to be really contagious," he continued, "must possess certain essential characteristics. It must first be contagious in its nature. People are repelled, not attracted, by the sad type of religion that can bring no cheer into their lives. It must be contagious in its cheerfulness, and its disciples were all of joyous natures; 'rejoice' was their byword. Live a life of cheer; have a bright word for all; banish gloom with real joy. Those who are sad are the type of religion that becomes contagious. To be cheerful does not necessarily imply a lack of seriousness, a shallow view of things, or a meaningless and objectless optimism.

Dr. Pierson further declared that another essential of a contagious religion was consistency. The very inconsistency in the lives of too many church people does much to drive away others. To spread a doctrine of good those who carry it must be consistent in their lives. They must practice what they preach. To live a life of joy and power and real religious security is the best evidence of the success of a religion. We must do most towards impressing others with its value.

"Further, a religion must be of the confessing type. You must confess about it, don't keep it secret for it won't have its full expression. The influence of the silent and secret is negative. For just this reason Jesus demanded confessions and repentance. We must talk about them; must preach our love and the power it gives us.

"And lastly, a religion must be contagious in its vitality. It is not attractive to others. We must recognize its necessity in our lives. We must give first place to the Master, not to ourselves. A life that is selfish and unselfish, and we must make some sacrifice to give prominence to the church.

"These things then are necessary if we would give to religion the real contagious nature that makes its influence so widely felt. We must be bold and aggressive as were the early disciples; we must not be afraid to confess and give testimony of its values; and we must make it a contagious religion, 'none of self and all of Christ.'"

Hardly Suitable For Sunday Night Entertainment Production Attracted Crowded House.

With much of the daring "originality" that caused the "World of Pleasure" to be one of the "hit" pictures, "naughty" shows of the metropolis, many of the sensational acts abbreviated, the production which appeared at the Myers Theatre Sunday evening, attracted a crowded house and evidently met with popular approval from the rounds of applause the clever work of William Norris and his fellow stage workers received.

The abbreviated scenes of the second act, which were wrapped in a pocket handkerchief, were a bit startling for a Sunday night audience, and hardly according to church ethics, and some suggested that the smile of the "ladies" went a long way to cover up deficiencies in clothing.

Some of the specialty artists, however, were of the highest caliber, and the production as a whole, at the close of the Milwaukee engagement also tended to cut short certain telling features but they really were not missed for Webster's wildest dream of adjectives failed this clever comedian.

It was Norris and a few other men and world of girls who made up the comedy and there was lots of fun, some old some new but ability sent over the old gags and the audience.

Norris was active every minute and the whole production was the third, gentleman in the boudoir at four A. M. was exceptionally good.

As a whole the leads were capable entertainers among whom were Frank Lyon, one of the chorus ladies who, when singing the feature song, "Pretty Baby" at Chicago, the occasion when long platformed girls, who were on the lower floor, forcibly kicked a spectator on the neck when he sought to pinch her ankle. There are many others who pleased.

Remarkable examples of stagecraft are the Toyshop and the Melting Pot, where quick transformation scenes are presented. The fan scene, another feature, was eliminated last night.

At the point in the production which the other cities has brought the wildest demonstrations and applause, the audience sat silent. This was the playing of "America" and the Toyshop scene. Not a single person in the audience stood and sang to orchestra accompaniment.

The music kept the audience of moving along, synchronized with the nature. The martial brass music, particularly that accompanying the stirring finale in the Toyshop scene, approach a military band.

Taking it all in all, "A World of Pleasure" was considerable show.

White House Winter Social Season Will Be Very Elaborate This Year

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington, Dec. 11.—The program for the White House social season has been announced and, as was generally expected, it omits the colorful diplomatic reception, because of the war, and also the time-honored New Year's reception for the public, in accordance with the custom President Wilson set when coming to office. In place of the diplomatic reception there will be two diplomatic dinners. The "entente" diplomats and all neutrals will be guests at the second. The first will be at the second. The first will be at the second. The first will be at the second.

The social events all come on Tuesdays instead of Thursdays, as formerly. The season begins earlier and ends in February instead of March, probably due to the fact that the White House wants it over by inauguration time. This is the program as officially announced:—Cabinet Dinner, 8 P. M., Dec. 19.—Judicial Reception, 9 P. M., Jan. 9.—Diplomatic Dinner, 8 P. M., Jan. 16.—Diplomatic Dinner, 8 P. M., Jan. 23.—Congressional Reception, 9 P. M., Jan. 30.—Supreme Court Dinner, 8 P. M., Feb. 6.—Army and Navy Reception, 8 P. M., Feb. 13.—Speakers Dinner, 8 P. M., Feb. 20.

Many Seek Invitations. Before the war the diplomatic reception was the social show of the winter. Invitations were sought so eagerly by those who were not quite sure to be invited that the President set the rule of placing an arbitrary limit on the number, outside of the diplomatic corps, who were to be invited without his personal approval. In form the reception differed little from those to Congress, the army or navy, or the judiciary. In fact it has a distinctly different atmosphere. The brilliant uniforms of the diplomats and their aides, the distinctly foreign manners of many, and the ceremony with which custom surrounds a diplomat when he is in full dress uniform made the reception distinctive from the others. In a general way, all the receptions are conducted on the same special guests are permitted to enter the main floor of the executive mansion but most enter at the east entrance and after leaving outer garments in the lower corridors of the White House form in long lines leading up the marble stair case to the first floor and into the Blue Room where the President and Mrs. Wilson, aided by members of the cabinet and their wives with army and navy aides in full dress, receive them. Hello! Goodbye.

The introductions are made by an aide; a brief word of greeting is spoken, followed by a hasty handshake and the guests pass along to the end of the receiving line to spend the remainder of the evening moving about or chatting with friends in the crowd. Even to persons not continuously in the President or his wife cannot say more than a word because to each of the receptions come between 1,500 and 2,000 persons and things have to move on time. In the state dining room the guests usually find a buffet luncheon and in opposite ends of the main corridor two sections of the Marine band play almost continuously. The nearer the top one is in official Washington the surer one is to receive invitations to these affairs, although some of the receptions are not so exclusive as the others. The Congressional reception, for instance, usually finds the world and his wife having a good time in the White House and not always in evening apparel.

In a capital where there are hundreds of persons not connected with the government, but active in social life, the limit to the number of guests must be raised by the capacity of the White House itself, if there were no other reasons. It is not easy for the social secretary and her force of clerks to handle the invitations to at least one reception may not be as fatal to social aspirations but it is something to be avoided by social prominence.

Tricks Easier, Once. Invitations, if anything, are not so easy to obtain as they used to be. A story told in social circles has it that at the opening of President Wilson's term a certain senator of influence sent to the White House for ten invitations issued in blank, in which he wished to write the names of constituents to whom he wished to show some favor. The story has it that his request was refused with a rebuke.

For some of the White House affairs, demand for invitations has been so great that almost unheard of subterfuges are used to obtain them and on one occasion watchful doorkeepers picked up admission tickets which proved to be very clever forgeries. The cabinet dinner which comes first this year is a comparatively quiet affair, participated in only by the President and his wife, the cabinet members and their wives and possibly a half dozen invited guests. It takes place in the state dining room and is elegant.

The two diplomatic dinners follow and the neutrality of the White House is concerned in having each no less brilliant, elaborate and attractive than the other. The neutral diplomats by the fortune of war enjoy two dinners instead of none at all, as they would if the world was at peace.

The Congressional reception, from the point of view of numbers is the largest event of the year. It is always a "crush." Every member of Congress, any constituents who happen in town, his clerks and stenographers and many others not connected with the government at all are sure to be there. The guests come in street cars and automobiles and are taken to the home of Chester Parish. She was born on June 16, 1886, and died Tuesday at her home at two o'clock. The deceased had made a hard fight for life and spent much of it in sanitariums, and was hopeful until the final hemorrhage Sunday. Evansville News

Evansville, Dec. 11.—After an illness of less than a week's duration, Clint Moore, one of our oldest and most honored and respected citizens, died at his home on Saturday. On the Sunday preceding Mr. Moore had suffered a slight stroke, from which he never recovered. Instead he gradually weakened and finally succumbed.

Mr. Moore had been a resident of Evansville for at least the past seventy-five years. He was born in Durham, New York state, on September 8, 1837. While yet a boy of about four his parents moved west and settled in Evansville. Coming as he did in the early forties, Mr. Moore practically grew up with the city. With the outbreak of the civil war, he was one of the first to respond to his country's need. With the ending of the war he again returned to this city and had resided here continuously since.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at one o'clock at the home. The interment was made in the Maple Hill cemetery, where the body was laid at rest beside that of Mr. Moore's brother, Z. C. Moore, who passed away but six months ago. The Rev. C. E. Coons of Lake Mills, former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city, conducted the services. Mrs. Fannie Dennison sang at the home. Mr. Moore is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. Arthur Spencer and Arthur and Guy Moore, all of this city.

Besides his immediate family and relatives, Mr. Moore's death will be mourned by a large circle of friends who knew him and appreciated his sterling worth. Mr. Moore was a member of the local G. A. R., he was given a soldier's burial, with members of the local post acting as pallbearers.

FRANCES INGRAM HERE FOR CONCERT TONIGHT

Noted Contralto Appears at Library Hall This Evening Under Auspices of The Apollo Club.

One of the most notable musical events of the season takes place this evening at Library Hall, when Frances Ingram, the contralto sensation of the past season appears under the auspices of the Apollo Club. Miss Ingram possesses all the attributes of a great singer, including a wonderful voice, youthful enthusiasm, brains, and that elusive thing known as personality. Nearly every concert of Miss Ingram's concerts during the season has contained some allusion to her remarkable personality. This trait is shown in everything that the young artist undertakes.

Her programs are built with an evident objective point that brings a real climax at the last number. Her singing demonstrates the fact that she lives the thought of every song and is therefore enabled to give a most vivid interpretation. In fact, Miss Ingram possesses all the requisites of the unusual artist and it is a matter of congratulation that the Apollo Club is to hear her.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen and have been keeping company with a boy for almost a year. Recently he has stopped calling.

(1) What would you advise me to do? Shall I write to him and ask what is the matter or shall I wait for him to call?
(2) Lately I have been corresponding with a boy that I haven't known more than a month. He wrote the first letter and I answered in about two days. Now it has been almost a week and he has not written yet. Don't you think he ought to answer? Or has he got plenty of time to answer? If he doesn't write in another week's time should I write to see what is the trouble?

(3) My girl friend is jealous of me when I go out with my boy friends and she acts indifferently. I can't do to make her act differently. I like her very much.
(4) I wait for him to call or what does he expect. I am sure he will call. A girl who allows herself to be in a state of expectancy waiting for a boy to call.
(5) If he doesn't write again you must be sure that he is no longer interested in the correspondence, and so there is no need of your writing to find out what is wrong. He still has time to answer your letter.
(6) I have boys come over some evening and invite your girl friend. She will see that you want her to have a good time, too, and she may feel more kindly toward you, and less jealous.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a bride-to-be. I will be married in church and I will have a white dress. Is it out of style to have a train on your dress if you wear a veil? They are showing them with and without trains. Please tell me if it is proper to have one.

(2) How many maids and attendants do the couple usually have?
(3) Do they ever have two little flower girls? If there are flower girls do they walk before or after the bride and groom?
(4) Which is worn most by the bride, white satin slippers or buck shoes, white satin slippers or buck shoes.
(5) Walking down the aisle of the church must the groom be on the left side of the bride?
(6) If the bride has a train and long veil does the maid of honor or the flower girls carry the train and veil to keep it from dragging on the floor?
(7) If it is perfectly proper to have a train, dresses are being made about four inches from the floor which very often falls from the shoulders. (8) There are four, six or eight bridesmaids, the matron of honor, the best man and the flower girls. The matron of honor leads the procession down the aisle. The brides follow the bride by two, then come the flower girls who scatter flowers before the bride who follows on the arm of her father.

(9) There are usually two flower girls and they walk in front of the bride.
(10) White satin slippers.
(11) The groom and the best man wait at the altar.
(12) The veil and train should drag.
(13) You are doubtful about anything ask the minister. He has officiated at so many weddings that he can help you out.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am fourteen years old and I want a diamond ring for Christmas. My parents say that I am too young to have one. What do you think? DOUBTFUL.
I agree with your parents. You are too young to have a diamond.

Household Hints

WASHING QUILTS.

When you wash a quilt do not rub on the board or with a back-breaking machine. Soak for several hours in a good suds of soap. Then use a common scrubbing brush and go over both sides. Rinse thoroughly and dry. The quilt will be clean.

USEFUL APRON FOR WASHING.
When doing any washing at home the front of one's skirt is apt to get wet and soiled. A good thing to prevent this is to buy one-half yard of American cloth, bought at any fur-nishing store, which is waterproof, and worn under one's ordinary apron, prevents any water from getting through.

ENVELOPE ECONOMY.
Some of the nice thin brown paper used in the shops for doing up parcels might be used quite as well for making envelopes, and it is an occupation for children that lends itself to either many or few. Here is the process, cutting the paper, tracing the pattern from an opened up copy, cutting it afterward, making it into the correct shape, gumming and ornamenting if desired.

THE TABLE.

Fried Rolled Oats.—In the evening put one quart of water in stew pan, add a pinch of salt; when water boils add one quart rolled oats; boil fifteen minutes, then add one-half cup milk; boil fifteen minutes more, stirring all the time to prevent burning. When done, pour into pan as you would for corn meal mush. In the morning turn out on a board or plate, slice and fry a "Kitchen Scrap" (a very good economical breakfast dish, as eggs need not be served). Three cups boiling salted water, one cup ground meat (any kind), left from previous meals, one cup ground bread crumbs. Put into boiling water and slowly add, beating the while, two cups corn meal. Season with sage and pepper, pour into mold, let cool. Slice and fry as you would mush. If no cold meat is at hand one-half pound of fresh sausage may be used, as it is already seasoned.

Economical Christmas Cake.—One-half cup butter, one and one-quarter cups brown sugar, two yolks, three-fourths cup milk, two and one-quarter cups flour, three and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup seedless raisins (chopped), one-half cup nutmeats (chopped), one-fourth cup citron (very thinly sliced), one teaspoon grated lemon rind (outside yellow only), pinch salt, two stiffly-beaten whites. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt (use one-fourth cup flour to flour the fruits). Soften butter. Add sugar gradually, and when well creamed stir in the yolks. Then add vanilla and four yolks. Pour in mixture and bake in slow oven about one and one-quarter hours. When cold frost with boiled frosting. Frosting: Take one cup granulated sugar, dampen it with one-fourth cup milk (five tablespoonsful); place it on fire in a suitable dish and stir until it boils. Add half five minutes without stirring. Remove from fire and set dish in another dish of cold water, add flavoring. While it is cooling stir or beat thick creamy frosting. Place in center of top a bunch of holly to give cake a Christmas decoration.

Dinner Dish (for four persons).—One pound round steak cut in pieces handy to serve. One cup stewed tomatoes, potatoes to make one quart after they are peeled and sliced, two or three onions, season with salt and pepper. Put a large spoonful of drippings in a pan, put in a layer of potatoes, then steak, then tomatoes, then onions and seasoning, then more potatoes, etc., until all are used, having potatoes on top. Pour in enough cold water to nearly cover and bake in one and one-half to two hours in moderate oven. All materials are in a raw state when prepared for oven. Serve with warm biscuits, or a light biscuit dough may be put over meat and vegetables if liked.

Plum Pudding.—Take a cup of chopped suet, mix it with three and one-fourth cups flour, keeping enough flour out to mix fruit with. Mix with the suet and flour one teaspoon each of powdered ginger, cinnamon and allspice. Mix together one-half pound each of seeded chopped raisins, citron and currants and rub through the fruit the remainder of flour. Mix with the suet one cup molasses, one cup fresh milk and juice and grated rind of one lemon; stir in fruit and last, add one teaspoon soda dissolved in a little hot water. Turn into greased mold and boil five hours. To be reheated for serving.

GINGLES' JINGLES

ATTORNEY BROWN.

He skidded in as the train clacked up, at a country crossroads town, strolled up the aisle of the first-class coach, strolled up and then strolled down; he wore a large high-colored rose in the lapel of his coat, as he meandered back and forth, right there with the back woods goat. At last he lit near a guy he knew in the years of long ago, draped the frame he toted right near poor him, cleared the deck for a three-reel show; he was some speller as the crank he turned, he could hit 'er up, by jove, he talked of the war and of politics, that stuff right home he drove, he sympathized with our soldier dead, praised the wet-erans still alive, the sob stuff he could wall and yawn, and his strong stuff had some drive. "He's a bug from Woppering Falls," said one, "he's a nut," another said, "you're both in wrong," said a pal of his, "that guy has got some head, he's Attorney Brown from our old home town, he's rehearsing his speech to Bill, his memorandum speech that he'll warble today, that he's going back home to Lem X. Single spitt."

Killing the Calves

—All sorts of excuses are offered for the high price of beef, the most plausible being the alleged demand for veal—"the killing of calves which should be allowed to grow into regular beef." You cannot have beef if you eat it as "veal," but you can have Shredded Wheat Biscuit which contains more real nutriment than beef and costs much less. Shredded wheat biscuit is the whole wheat steam-cooked, shredded and baked. Make it your "meat" for ten days and see how much better you feel. Wholesome and strengthening for any meal with milk or cream or in combination with fruits. Made at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

SHELBY, WIS., HAS LID TO AVERT CAROUSING OF TOWN DRUNKS

Shelby, Wis., Dec. 11.—Village authorities here have clamped the lid on carousing. They say that the inhabitants of this little place were especially gay, but the town board thought it saw recently a disposition to tilt the lid a little, so just to be on the safe side they notified the town's twelve saloon-keepers that the midnight closing law would be strictly enforced.

"We don't propose to have lid tilting sneak into Shelby," said S. J. Markie, chairman of the town board, "from towns which are tightening up."

ADVISE PEOPLE TO SWAT THE FLY NOW

Madison, Wis., Dec. 11.—Do your next summer's fly swatting now, is the timely warning passed out today by the state health department. Flies bug the ceiling, walls and draperies in cold weather for warmth. Far from being dead while lying around stiff with cold, they will show by the time the next warm spell that they were merely "possuming."

Most of last summer's flies have completed their life cycle and are dead, but those hatched late have laid their eggs in favorable places for incubation when the houses are heated in winter-time.

Every stray fly swatted now cuts off a progeny of several crops by next fall. According to Dr. W. A. Evans, Chicago, the calculated number of descendants of a female fly through a full season, covering all stages of egg, larva, pupa, fly to fly, and ready to lay, would be 131 quintillions, 220 quadrillions, or 131,220,000,000,000,000. The progeny of a single pair in one season is estimated at one sextillion.

Many a home becomes a winter haven for flies, continues the department. The clean home is not exempt from their intrusions. When the weather turns cold all homes become attractive to flies and only the greatest vigilance will keep them out.

"When flies do get into the house," the advice runs, "don't let them go to the ceiling and stay there, and don't think the first freeze will kill them off. Flies are not dead when they lie around stiff with cold. They are only waiting for warmer weather to revive them and continue their marauding from the fifth pipes to the food in our homes and the milk bottle of the baby. Now is the time when swatting is really effective, and all means to make sure that not one may be carried over from one season to the next."

More important than killing the stray flies that remain is to eradicate the breeding places by removing the fly's access to stable manure, garbage, outhouses and other refuse. Flies are responsible for a large proportion of all cases of typhoid fever, diarrheal diseases of infants, and many cases of tuberculosis, and practically every infectious and contagious disease can be transmitted from the common barn fly or house fly. Wisconsin is contributing its share of deaths as a result of neglect in destroying the fly, permitting it to play such a fearful part in the transmission of deadly disease.

IVORY SOAP is white—by nature. No bleaches are used.

Ivory Soap is the rich, creamy white produced by the combination of its high grade ingredients. It is white by nature as milk is white, cotton is white, snow is white.

Ivory Soap is white because it is good. Its whiteness, while desirable in itself, is more important as further evidence of Ivory's quality.

Many people try Ivory Soap because it is this natural creamy white. They continue to buy it because its quality is all that its color implies.

PRE-NUPRIAL PROMISES NIX FOR AUTO DRIVERS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 11.—Another pre-nuptial promise probably will be broken by an automobile racing driver. Several months ago Louis Diabrow promised his bride that he would forsake the track—forever. Now, it is understood, he will pilot our next season Ralph Mulford and Ray Harroun are numbered among the famous racers who promised their wives that they would quit, but didn't.

The Highflyers

"Oh, Tom, I have had the loveliest day. Marjory breezed into the living room where Tom sat waiting for her that they might go out to dinner. I am so sorry I am so late," she continued as she saw the gloom on her husband's face. "I can't tell you, you must come and see what beautiful furniture I have selected for the house."

"I thought we were to go together to pick out the furniture," growled Tom, struggling into his great coat. "We were to, but the head of the furniture department in Fowler's called up and asked me to come down and see some new things they had just unpacked, so I could have a fine selection, as he said. He was at liberty to show the goods and he is such a pleasant fellow, really."

"Don't be disagreeable, Tom," begged Marjory. "I did not engage the furniture; that is done already. I thought you would want to see it, though. I always let me get what pleased me." Tom smiled disdainfully. "If there is anything you do not like we will get something else. I'm not going to quarrel with you, Tom. I said money would make me angelic, and I don't feel cross at all even if you are unreasonable." Tom glared at his wife who was radiating condescension and Christian fortitude.

"I suppose you prefer going to these places alone and being bowed down to and flattered?"

"Tom! Do you think I would care for your mind and your memory, and fling at each other."

"Yes, that's just like you, always thinking of yourself first," said she. "Maybe I am," says he, "but I'd like to know who you were thinking of when—"

"These are the things that leave the wounds."

If two young people would make up their minds not to drag miserable misadventures of this sort into their arguments, how much more often would they remain arguments, and not degenerate into quarrels.

Optimistic Thought.
An hour well spent is worth a week wasted away.

WHAT THEY QUARRELED ABOUT.
"He had married in the glow of youth; he had had two years of clean and simple loving, helping, quarreling and the happy ending of quarrels."

Someone read that aloud the other day.

"It's a long time since we've quarreled," said the Most-Recently-Wedded Lady, proudly. "Not since last July, is it dear?"

He thought a moment. "Yes," he said, reluctantly, "don't you remember we had a pretty bad upset in August?"

Her face became grave. "Goodness, yes," she said, "almost the worst we've had."

"What on earth do you people ever find to quarrel about?" asked Molly. He Couldn't Remember.

"Well, let me see," said the Most-Recently-Wedded Man. "What was it last time, Edith?"

She looked blank. "Now what was it?" she said.

"They both thought a moment. "I can't remember," she confessed. "I can't remember," said he. "I can remember some of the 'fool things we flung at each other after we got started, but I can't remember what the earth started to."

"And yet," said the Most-Recently-Wedded Lady, still evidently searching in the recesses of her mind, "I do remember that I held out a long time because I felt it was a principle we disagreed about."

"They Were Both Sure a Principle Was Involved."

"Yes," said the Most-Recently-Wedded Man, "I have that same feeling."

Of course, we all laughed and they, being young people rich in blessed possession, a sense of humorous perspective, laughed too.

To quarrel about a principle, and not to remember three months afterward what the principle was! Typical!

"They could remember the 'fool things' they flung at each other after they got started. Yes, because these were the things that hurt."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
 That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
 Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.
 Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.
 No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.
 If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.
 Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. For them, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

FELL FROM LOFT; HURT; THEN WELL

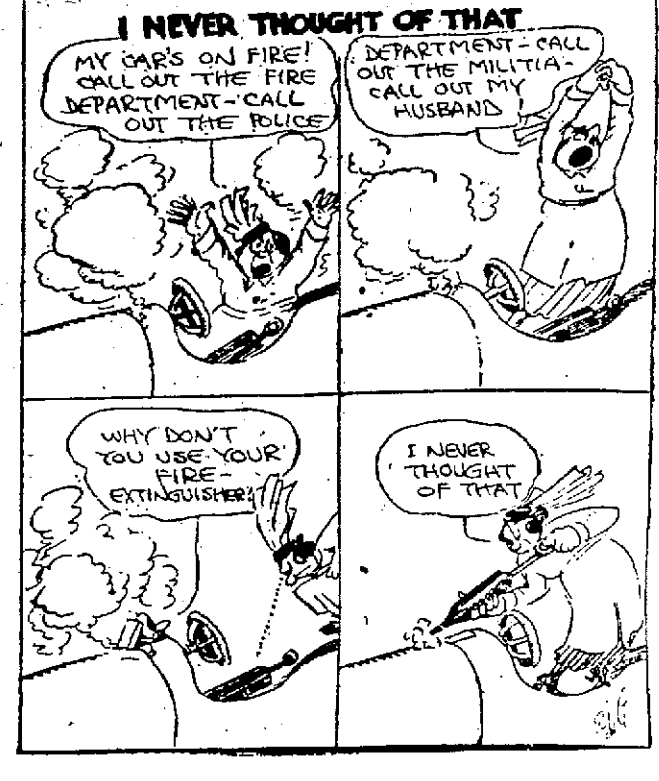

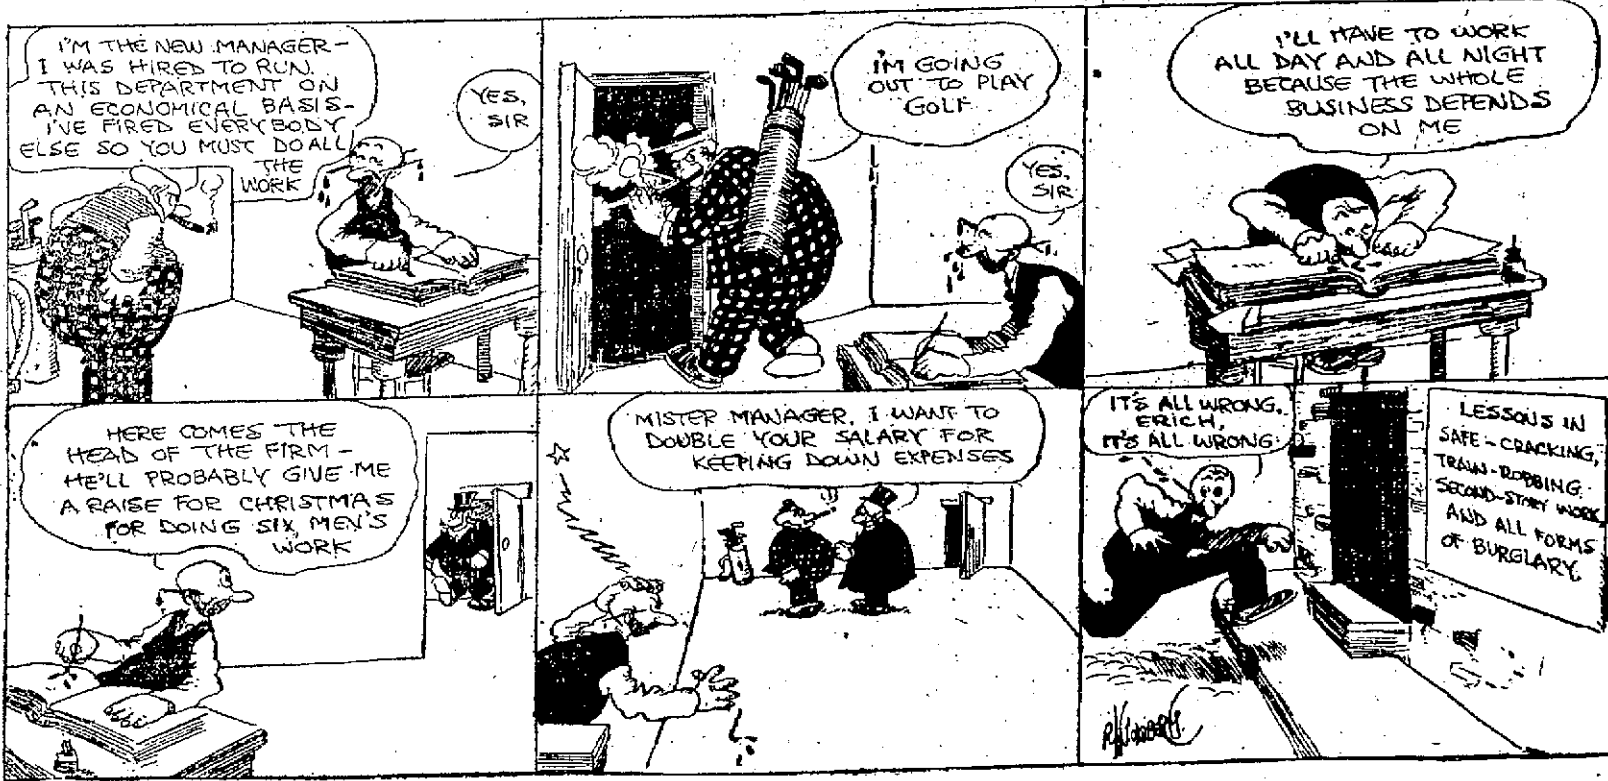

How a Man Who Landed On Wood Pile And Was Sore From Head to Foot Found Quick Relief.

Once upon a time Edwin Putnam, who lives in the quiet, pretty hamlet of Wendell Depot, Mass., climbed up into a loft to get some building material, just as many another man lives in the country must often do. Suddenly he slipped and fell. Ten feet below was a pile of wood, knotted and gnarled. It was a nasty tumble, and Mr. Putnam was injured painfully in the back, he was covered with bruises, and was sore from head to foot.
 The next day he bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which had been recommended to him. Within a very few hours the soreness had vanished and the lameness had disappeared. He was an active man once more.
 Sloan's Liniment can be obtained at all drug stores, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

he commented, when she had finished. "So is anything worth while. Look at the way you work!"
 Doctor Ed rose and wandered around the room.
 "I don't think I like the idea," he said at last. "It's splendid work for Street's name for them—ventured on various small familiarities of speech with Tillie. K. Le Moyne himself was scrupulously polite but reserved. He was determined not to let the Street encroach on his wretchedness. Because he had come to live there was no reason why it should adopt him. But he was very polite. When the deaf-and-dumb book agent wrote something on a pencil pad and pushed it toward him, he replied in kind.
 "We are very glad to welcome you to the McKee family," was what was written on the pad.
 "Very happy, indeed, to be with you," wrote back Le Moyne—and realized with a sort of shock that he meant it. The kindly greeting had touched him. The greeting and the breakfast cheered him also, he had evidently made some headway with Tillie.
 "Don't you want a toothpick?" she asked, as he went out.
 In K's previous walk of life there had been no toothpicks; or, if there were any, they were kept, along with the family scandals, in a closet. But newly a year of buffeting about had taught him many things. He took one, and placed it nonchalantly in his waistcoat pocket, as he had seen the others do.
 Change was in the very air of the Street that June morning. It was in Harriet, asserting her right to live; in Sidney, planning with eager eyes a life of service which did not include Joe; in K. Le Moyne, who had built up a wall between himself and the world, and was seeing it demolished by a deaf-and-dumb book agent whose weapon was a lead pencil pad!
 And yet, for a week nothing happened. Joe came in the evenings and sat on the steps with Sidney, his honest heart in his eyes. Anna, no longer sulky, accepted with childlike faith Sidney's statement that "they'd get along; she had a splendid scheme," and took to helping Harriet in her preparations for leaving. And K. Le Moyne, finding his little room hot in the evenings and not wishing to intrude on the two on the doorstep, took to reading his paper in the park, and after twilight to long, rapid walks out into the country. The walks satisfied the craving of his active body for exercise, and tired him so he could sleep.
 When K. was sure that the boy had gone, he would turn back toward the Street. Some of the heaviness of his spirit always left him at sight of the little house. Its kindly atmosphere seemed to reach out and envelop. Within was order and quiet, the freshness of his turned-down bed, the tidiness of his ordered garments.

Dinner Stories

The prison visitor on his usual rounds noticed that a new man occupied a cell that had been empty for some time.
 "My friend," he began, "may I ask you what brought you here?"
 "The same thing that brought you here," replied the convict; "a desire to poke my nose into other people's business, only I generally used to go in by the basement window."
 Johnny B.—who has seen eight summers go by, not very long ago developed a fondness for playing "hooky" from school. After two or three offenses of this kind he was taken to task by his teacher.
 "Johnny," she said, "the next time you are absent I want you to bring me an excuse from your father telling me why you were not here."
 "I don't want to bring an excuse from father," protested the boy.
 "Why not?" asked the teacher, her suspicion plain.
 "Cause father isn't any good at making excuses. Mother finds him out every time."
 The city-bred boy's parents had just moved into the country and arrangements were being made for him to attend the public school. One day he saw electricians at work there.
 "What are those fellows doing?" he asked his father.
 "Putting in an electric switch," was the reply.

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

"Well, I am going back to town at once," was the boy's astonishing comment. "I won't stand a school where they do their licking by electricity!"

The editor was pretty mad.
 "Are you the chump who wrote that recruiting ball?" he said to the quaking reporter. "Oh, you are! Well, look here. Among the prattling girls in the room was Colonel Oldmud. Nice rubbish, that is. The colonel's a man, I suppose, isn't he?"
 "He may be," said the reporter brazenly, "but that is where he was."

COMMISSION CHECKS UNFAIR COMPETITION

Federal Trade Board Makes Adjustments in 246 Cases During Year According to Annual Report.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The country's business men have given hearty cooperation to the Federal Trade Commission in its efforts to maintain proper standards of commercial morality in American business, according to the annual report of the commission made public today.

Development of the commission's policy has had for its first purpose, the report declares, promotion of the best business efficiency. Its aim has been "to understand and make allowance for the difficulty of the problem."

to see both sides of every case, to protect men in the furtherance of legitimate self-interest by all reasonable and normal methods, and at the same time keep the channels of competition free and open to all, so that a man with small capital may engage in business in competition with powerful rivals, assured that he may operate his business free from harassment and intimidation and may be given a fair opportunity to work out his business problems with such industry, efficiency and intelligence as he may possess.

Prevent Unfair Competition.

The report lays stress on the work of the commission in preventing unfair competition. Since its creation and up to the end of the fiscal year the commission has considered 246 applications for the issuance of complaints against corporations and firms accused of unfair practices. Of those, 107 have been disposed of in various ways. Some concerns were ordered to discontinue the tactics complained of, others voluntarily agreed to cease unbusinesslike methods, and in some cases no law violations were found. The charges covered many kinds of law violations.

The trade commission's work has included also economic and special investigations. What the commission considers its most important economic inquiry was into the subject of cooperation in export trade. This report was issued during the summer and recommended to congress that American manufacturers be permitted to form export combinations. A bill providing for that, having the endorsement of the administration, is now pending in congress.

One investigation had to do with uniform accounting methods. That showed, according to the commission, a large percentage of the country's manufacturers and merchants had slight knowledge of their costs of production or selling expense. An investigation of trade possibilities and conditions in each of the country's industries, the report says, developed information that will prove invaluable to producers and persons contemplating investments.

Made Investigations.

The commission investigated the high prices of gasoline, started inquiries into the print paper situation and the bituminous and anthracite coal industries, continued its investigation of resale price maintenance and aided in disposing of the Mexican sisal crop.

Activities in connection with enforcement of the Sherman act included an investigation to determine the relations existing between various companies into which the Standard Oil Company was dissolved and preparation of a decree in the Corn Products Refining Co. case referred to it by the federal courts.

An urgent appeal is made to congress for a larger appropriation for carrying on the work of the commission, which, the report declares, has grown so heavy the present force of employees cannot handle it.

WEATHER FORECASTS SENT BY WIRELESS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 11.—Wireless weather forecasts for all parts of Wisconsin are now sent out daily by the University of Wisconsin student wireless squad from the new sending station which was recently added to the university radio equipment.

These reports are furnished by Eric Miller, who has charge of the United States weather bureau, situated a short distance from the university wireless station. Daily at about 11 o'clock these reports are sent out by a member of the wireless squad, and the strength of the sending apparatus is such that the messages can be picked up in the most remote parts of the state.

An amateur anywhere in the state would be able to get these forecasts very easily, according to Prof. E. M. Terry, who has charge of the wireless work at the university. The simple equipment necessary to receive these messages from the university station would not cost more than $10, he estimated, and very much less if the amateur constructed part of it himself.

Members of the radio squad are ready to give information about setting up a receiving station to anyone who is interested in receiving messages from the Wisconsin "A" station. Diagrams of the equipment will be furnished to those who have trouble in getting their stations in working order.

In addition to sending out weather reports for the state which the bureau at Madison furnishes, the university wireless station receives daily the general weather reports from Washington for the region of the great lakes, and also the standard time.

Farmers throughout the state and persons in small towns would find it valuable to have amateur receiving stations to pick up the weather forecasts messages, since the radio service is more rapid than wire service.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Do you start for the office Monday morning with a frown on your face and a glare in your eye that starts the whole force with a grouch?

It isn't possible in a few words to describe the Saturday to Monday habits of everyone. The majority of people however, are apt to fall into two general divisions. One class tries to crowd too much into the time and take up their business Monday morning exhausted and tired. The other goes to extremes by overeating and under-exercising.
